As J6 prepare for their visit to Shakespeare's Globe in London, they have begun studying The Tempest. The play begins with a terrible storm at sea. J6 have been writing descriptive poems to set the scene...

*'Yellow lightning dismantling,
Taking over the whole sea
Like a huge foot stamping on the earth, step by step
In an evil sky'*

William Tomlinson

*A tiny yacht dances in the enormous waves
As the storm reigns over the sky and sea
With almighty power as the boat is thrown to and fro
Like a ping-pong ball in a game of table tennis
In a monstrous ocean*

Tabitha Mullock

*A shipwreck rising from the ocean floor
To live its glory once again
Like a traumatised ghost taking out its upset on the sea
In a dangerous ocean*

Anna Holden
